Dan Hipple presented his talk:

The Niobe: The Ship and the Medal

The Segelschulschiff Niobe, a German naval training ship, was built in 1913 in Denmark, sold to Norway, captured by Germany, and award to the Soviet Union at the end of World War I before being re-purchased by the German Navy, rebuilt as a 3-masted barque, and christened the SSS Niobe in 1923. The Niobe carried a crew of 32 and 77 cadets.

The Niobe capsized in a shear squall incident off the tip of Fehmarn Island on July 26, 1932. Sixty-nine crewmembers were lost, forty were rescued. The Niobe was raised in August of 1932 and the crew buried on Fehmarn Island where a monument was erected. The Free State of Prussia could not afford to pay benefits to the families of the lost crew members due to the economic problems of the period. To help the families and to help purchase a new ship, the Berlin mint struck approximately 40,000 silver memorial medals that were sold for 5 marks each to raise funds. In addition to the medal displayed by Dan, Karl Goetz produced a memorial medal, 85 mm size individually cast and 36 mm struck at the Munich mint, that he sold independent of the Prussian fund raising efforts.
